

Drought Relief Loan Bill Sent To Senate After Assembly O. K.

Fund of Million to be Made Available to 40 Counties

$100 MAXIMUM LOAN

Amendment to Yield Liquor Tax Mortgage Is Beaten

Madison — (P) — The assembly unanimously passed the administration's $1,000,000 drought relief loan bill today after house leaders fought off an amendment to strike out the state's mortgage of the local shares of liquor taxes, which will guarantee repayment of the fund.

The bill was messaged back to the senate where it originated and in a few days will be signed into law by Governor LaFollette, at whose request it was introduced.

The fund will be made available to the 40 counties in the drought regions where farmers are in urgent need of feed for their dairy herds, but it will be necessary beforehand, for each county board to meet in special session to take advantage of the act.

Fight Over Amendment

While the bill encountered no opposition on final passage, its fate hinged for a time on a battle among members of all parties over the section requiring towns, cities and villages to pledge their liquor tax money as security.

Assemblyman John Pritchard (P), Eau Claire, who introduced the amendment to eliminate this section, contended that local communities cannot afford to lose any part of their present revenues.

He maintained there was ample authority in the bill for a county board to provide work relief for farmers who cannot repay in cash and that this was sufficient security for the state.

A motion to reject Pritchard's amendment lost on a 47 to 47 tie vote with party lines split.

Alfonsi's Warning

Speaker Paul Alfonsi of Pence took the floor to warn the house that if the amendment were adopted, the measure, because of the condition of the state treasury, would not become law. He was supported on a 34 to 40 vote refusing adoption of the amendment and the bill went through without further argument.

The maximum loan to any farmer will be $100. Working through the Wisconsin Farm Credit administration, the county boards are expected to set up drought relief committees to make the most of the $1,000,000 which the proponents admitted was not enough to meet all anticipated demands. Meanwhile, the state will seek additional help from the federal government.

It will be optional with the county boards whether they want to participate. Those that do may receive a total allotment not exceeding four times the amount the state returns to the county annually in liquor taxes.

Farmers granted loans will pay no interest, but will have to repay their obligations, half by June 1, 1938, and half by June 1, 1939. Their repayments will be held in trust for the state treasury, which will deduct any defaults from the liquor tax revenue.

California Senators

May Summon Mooney

Sacramento, Calif. — (P) — Thomas J. Mooney may be called before the California state senate when it takes up the assembly's approved pardon resolution, some legislators said today.

Assemblyman Paul A. Richie of San Diego, who handled the resolution in the lower house, said no effort would be made to obtain immediate consideration by the senate.

Passed by a 45 to 28 assembly vote, the resolution would exonerate Mooney of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing.

Although the resolutions does not mention Warren G. Harding, like Mooney serving a life prison term, Richie asserted it would "open the way" for his release.

Frozen Assets
In the Antarctic

Wealth in oil and coal lies under millions of unexplored square miles at the South Pole, says Admiral Byrd. But, he warns, those riches are deep under solid ice where the sinking of wells entails dangerous work in freezing temperatures. Cold there's oil, freezing cuts no ice. Still, there's no place like home, no danger of being frozen in and small chance of being frozen out when you use Post-Crescent classified want-ads. This one was a well of good results.

Britain Will Start 148 New Ships in Year

80 More Warships Included in 1937 Estimates, Hoare Says

FIVE CAPITAL SHIPS

Program Will be Carried Out Without Delay,
Commons Told

London — (P) — Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, told the house of commons today that Great Britain will have under construction the remarkable number of 148 new warships.

Sir Samuel introduced the 1937 naval estimates. These call for 80 more new ships to cost $25,325,000. With the ships already started, these will bring the total to be under construction by the end of 1937 to the 148 figure, he said.

They will include five capital ships, four aircraft carriers, and seventeen cruisers.

"We are forced," said Sir Samuel, "to telescope into two or three years what ought to be normally carried out in a decade."

"Past deficiencies," he said, "of this acceleration of the naval phase of Britain's five year, $7,500,000,000 defense program.

The first lord of the admiralty predicted the ship-building program would be carried out without delay.

Record Program

"We shall have the material for construction and when the ships are built, we shall have the men to man them," he cried.

Sir Samuel continued: "Never since the years before 1914 have we had two such annual programs in peacetime." (He explained he was referring to the 1935-37 plans).

"The wild claims of fanatics that air power has destroyed sea power have been swallowed up in the element from which they came."

Every preparation, he said, has been made to learn "the lessons of war."

"In recent years there have been experiments, often of the most secret kind, with every type of explosive upon every kind of material."

"Our counter-action to the threat from the air has included the fullest use of air power itself and the production of anti-aircraft weapons on a scale undreamed of in 1918."

Members of the house of commons leaned forward eagerly to hear Sir Samuel declare:

"Now, henceforth, there can be no rivalry between the American and British navies. Nor can there be any race between German and British naval armaments."

Witness Tells Probers
Hoffman Recommended
Detective Agency

Washington — (P) — An official of the RCA Manufacturing company of Camden, N. J., told a senate committee today his concern contracted for strike guards with a New York detective agency because the agency was recommended by Governor Harold G. Hoffman.

Robert Shannon, vice president in charge of manufacturing for the company, testified he believed the guards, wanted for a strike in June, 1936, would be state detectives.

He was told they would be state men, he said, by George Williams, representing the Sherwood Detective agency of New York, adding, he placed faith in Williams because of Williams' "personal contact with Governor Hoffman."

Shannon said when he learned the guards provided by the Sherwood agency were not state men he cancelled the agreement and ordered them out of town the same day they arrived.

Chairman LaFollette (P-Wis.) placed in the committee records a letter from Governor Hoffman to Elmer T. Cunningham, company president, which was used by Williams in selling the services of the Sherwood agency shortly before the strike started.

Granted in Milwaukee

Milwaukee — (P) — Circuit Judge Otto H. Breidenbach granted today a mortgage foreclosure judgment of $730,407.62 against the clubhouse of the Milwaukee Aerie 137, Fraternal Order of Eagles. A one year redemption period was allowed.

The foreclosure was sought by Harry R. McGowan, former manager of the Eagles, and a trustee for a $538,200 bond issue sold in May, 1926. He said the club had defaulted in interest payments totaling $73,207.62.

Die in Burning Home

Chicago — (P) — Two children, Thomas Cellini, 11 months, and his sister, Betty Jane, 2 years, were burned fatally today in a fire which broke out in their bedroom while they slept.

An uncle, John Desandre, Jr., summoned by the cries of the children's mother, Mrs. Paul Cellini, who occupied an adjoining bedroom, tried futilely to rescue the boy and girl. He suffered severe back burns.

Envoy Ordered to Protest Attacks on U. S. in Germany

Washington — (P) — Secretary Hull today instructed Ambassador William E. Dodd at Berlin to make vigorous representations to the German foreign office concerning recent articles appearing in the German press about the United States.

The secretary of state recently apologized formally to the German embassy here for remarks made by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York in which LaGuardia referred to Chancellor Hitler as a "brown-shirted fanatic."

LaGuardia's statements, made before the women's sections of the American Jewish congress, evoked a deluge of criticism from the German press in which LaGuardia not only was attacked but American institutions and Jewish women also were flayed.

This press campaign was called, to Secretary Hull's attention by Mrs. Stephen S. Wise, wife of the noted Jewish rabbi and chairman of the women's section of the American Jewish congress.

Strike Snag in Discussions to Settle Dispute

General Motors and Union
Want to 'Iron Out'
Minor Details

SESSION IS ADJOURNED

Labor Delegation Denies Serious Breakdown in Negotiations

Detroit — (P) — Announcing they still had several minor details to "iron out," General Motors and United Automobile Workers' union representatives adjourned this afternoon until tomorrow their negotiations for a final settlement of issues that precipitated the recent General Motors strike.

Expecting to reach a final agreement and sign it for approval by the union's strategy board, the conferees had remained in session until mid-afternoon without a customary luncheon recess.

When the adjournment until 10 a. tomorrow was announced, C. E. Wilson, General Motors vice president, said: "There are still several things to iron out. We don't like these 18 sit-down strikes we've had in 20 days. We already have an agreement of Feb. 11, and if the union doesn't live up to that one, we'll live up to another."

The union officials have denied they ordered any of the recent sit-down strikes in General Motors plants in various cities. Ed Hall, union vice president, said after today's conference that "some things" appearing in the final draft "will have to be changed."

Answers Wilson

Hall, requested for an explanation of Wilson's assertion, said: "They, likewise, have an agreement, and if they don't live up to this one any better than they did to their agreement of Feb. 11, they will have a lot of sit-downs. Let them put that in their pipe and smoke it."

He charged that there had been discrimination and discharge of union men allegedly for union activities.

A chorus of "noes" from the union delegation met a suggestion of conferees that this exchange of charges and countercharges signified a serious break-down of the negotiations.

Seek New Location

Executives of another of the "big three" automobile producers, the Chrysler corporation, occupied temporary offices in a downtown hotel as they sought a new location for continuing their conference with U. A. W. officials.

Union leaders, retaliating to a company injunctive action, announced that sit-down strikers occupying the Chrysler plants in Hamtramck, Highland Park and Detroit would not permit corporation executives to enter the buildings.

The conferees had been meeting in the office of the Highland Park unit prior to yesterday's application by the corporation for an injunction against the strikers and union officials. Circuit Judge Allen Campbell ordered the defendants to show cause at 9:30 a. m. (E. S. T.) Saturday why an injunction should not be granted.

Idleness among automotive workers increased. With more than 55,000 Chrysler employees and 10,000 workers for the Hudson Motor car company idle at Detroit, a sit-down factory at Lansing, Mich., threw 2,300 out of work.

Mrs. Charlia Caudill

Sent to State Hospital

Kenosha — (P) — Mrs. Charlia Caudill, 42, accused of beating her farmer-employer and his son with an ax, was ordered committed to the Central State hospital today.

Municipal Judge Calvin Stewart ordered the commitment at the close of a sanity hearing at which a commission of physicians testified Mrs. Caudill was mentally ill and incapable of defending herself against charges of assault with intent to murder.

District Attorney John P. McCoy said Mrs. Caudill admitted that on the night of Feb. 17 she went to the room in which William A. Bennett and his 14-year-old son, Guywene, were sleeping and beat them on the head with an ax. The skulls of both were fractured. Both were recovering today.

Mrs. Caudill was found in the Bennett farm orchard. Her throat and wrists had been slashed.

Million Starving as Famine Strikes
Western Honan Province in China

Hankow, China — (P) — One million residents of western Honan province, where famine has created "three thousand square miles of silence," are suffering acutely from lack of food and water, the China international famine relief commission reported today.

"A total of two million persons is involved," the commission, headed by John Earl Baker of Eagle, Wis., declared. "Deaths as yet have been comparatively few but are doomed to increase before spring crops have matured." The report painted a tragic picture of farmers in 6,000 villages deserting their homes to "plod silently toward railway lines where government relief is their only hope."

Their stomachs are bloated from weeks of subsistence on tree barks and roots" after a meager harvest last fall, the commission's findings said.

Along the dusty roads men, women and children trek toward railway lines where they hope relief awaits them. One investigator said: "The dry tongues of children beg for water but no sound breaks through their parched lips."

"No dog barks and crow caws because they have all been eaten" Honan provincial authorities have undertaken relief measures at various towns within the area where vast crowds of sufferers line up to receive four ounces of soup as their daily ration. Each of the famine sufferers is advised to lie down to "conserve energy."

Conditions are worse, the commission said, in the areas far from the railroad lines. There, fathers are selling their daughters at prices ranging from $3 to $12, the report stated.

Vandenbush and 2
Companions Plead
Guilty of Robbery

Wisconsin Desperado
Faces Maximum of 70
Years in Prison

White Plains, N. Y. — (P) — Merle Vandenbush, designated by "G-men" as "public No. 1," and his two companions entered pleas of guilty in county court today to indictments charging robbery of a Katonah, N. Y. bank.

The pleas came unexpectedly after the three prisoners, heavily guarded by deputies carrying pistols in their hands, were ushered into court from the county jail at East View.

All three had pleaded innocent, although the $17,600 loot was found in their car when the three were captured by "county cops."

George Rera, owner and driver of the car, broke the united front of the defense by changing his plea to guilty, and this unexpected move caused the calling of a court recess to determine the course of the remaining defendants.

At the conclusion of the recess, both Vandenbush and Anthony Rara changed their pleas to guilty.

Wanted in Kidnaping

Vandenbush, short bank robber and kidnaper, faces a maximum sentence of 70 years imprisonment. He is wanted in New Jersey on a charge of kidnaping a state trooper.

The middle west desperado told the court he was 29 years old and unmarried. The black dye he said he had used in his red hair to escape detection after the New Jersey trooper's kidnaping, had begun to streak.

After George Rera had changed his plea, assistant District Attorney William F. Horan told the court that a supercharged indictment had been drawn against George Rera.

Horan asked the court to note in sentencing that George was not in the bank during the holdup and had not possessed firearms.

Through his plea he faces a maximum sentence of 15 to 30 years.

Taking no chances a raid of "Spring" Vandensbush, whose pal, Harry Brunette, another midwest bank robber, now is serving life imprisonment in New Jersey for kidnaping a state trooper, police officers threw an elaborate guard around the trio.

A big sedan loaded with heavily armed policemen paced the prison.

Nelson Galipeau Visits Schneider In Washington

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington — An Appleton old-timer, who has been away from his home town for several years, showed up in Washington the other day for a chat with Representative George J. Schneider of Appleton. He is Nelson J. Galipeau, formerly with the Appleton Wire Works Co. and he claims to have been the second oldest wire-worker in Appleton.

According to Schneider, Galipeau left Appleton about four years ago and has been making his home in Bedford, Va. He said he was on his way to Springfield, Mass., where he planned to celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary with his wife and daughter.

During his stay in Washington, Galipeau took time out to do some sight-seeing and through the courtesy of Representative Schneider saw the House and Senate in session.

He will go directly to his white cottage on Pine Mountain overlooking the foundation which he established for infantile paralysis sufferers.

R. Roosevelt at a press conference late yesterday said he and Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King of Canada had discussed the St. Lawrence waterway treaty during King's weekend visit here.

Whether the treaty will be submitted to the senate at this session, he said, is not yet known. It was rejected a few years ago.

The president also expressed regret at the rejection of the proposed child labor amendment by the New York state assembly.

British Banker Looks for Gains In World Trade

Sir Josiah Stamp Praises
Exchange Equalization Account

Chicago—Sir Josiah Stamp, a director of the Bank of England, said in an address prepared for broadcast today from London, the exchange equalization account was "one of the great inventions of the last few years."

The noted economist, who is also president of the London Midland and Scottish railway, told the fourth annual Woman Congress, sponsored by a Chicago newspaper, the leading countries were gradually moving toward a new currency and exchange standard that can be expected to aid international trade.

Sir Josiah said "we here greatly admire the far-sighted wisdom of Secretary Cordell Hull and we hope that the various links he is forging will be rapidly followed up until we find ourselves able to trade internationally without so many artificial aids and special arrangements."

Miss Mary Duffy of Newark, N. J., supreme regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, speaking to the several thousand women attending the congress, asserted "communism affronts our civilization."

Assails Communism
"Communism," she said, "is diametrically opposed to all religion. It declares the end of all things is the state. It denies to man all earthly possessions."

Miss Mary Stewart, superintendent of Indian education, Sacramento, Calif., said education must be realistic for "the youth of today needs to face life realistically; to search out living facts, to think, to discriminate, to evacuate and to act."

Walter J. Kohler, former governor of Wisconsin, told the women yesterday "collectivism and the cult of all-powerful government have been coming upon us stealthily and piecemeal."

"Long steps have been taken, and more are being urged, to build up a system of centralized control of credit, electrical power, transportation, communication, agriculture, employment relations, production and prices."

"Thirty per cent of the income of the American people is now being spent 'collectively' by government. Considerable of the expenditure is describable only as squandering it."

Outlines Position
"Some clear thinkers assert that already it is too late to talk of free enterprise in the United States. We must choose whether to take further steps toward collectivism," he continued.

Kohler stated his position as: "Americans can make progress, and can achieve increasing security only by their own individual efforts, protected by a government of laws operated under constitutional restrictions against arbitrary power and against infringement of civil liberties."

James M. Landis, chairman of the securities commission and Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) spoke last night to the women.

Landis contended the balance between the three branches of government had been "subtly and increasingly upset" in the last 35 years, and the Roosevelt supreme court plan was the only one to restore that balance.

Wheeler, charging that Roosevelt preached "haste and hate" denied the opposition to the administration.

No Inquest After Man Dies in Burning Home

Rice Lake, Wis. — (U)—Coroner William E. Rydell said today no inquest would be held in the death by fire of Norman Kingsley, 53-year-old bachelor, whose cottage two miles east of Canton was destroyed Tuesday night by a blaze of unknown origin.

The roaring flames awakened William Crotteau, a neighbor, who made an unsuccessful attempt to rescue Kingsley from the building.

Claims on Both Sides of Court Fight Plausible

Price of Liberty Is Cumber-someness of Democracy, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The impression made by President Roosevelt's radio speech on most persons in congress, including those who disagree with his plan to enlarge the supreme court, may be summed up in one word — plausible.

The president's arguments, it is recognized, have the great advantage of being presented in a persuasive manner because the average man is never interested in procedures but in quick results, not in prolonged debate but in assertive leadership.

Yet precisely because the president's speech makes out a plausible case for enlargement of the supreme court, the plausibility of the other side of the matter is not being overlooked by the large number here who dissent.

Thus, Mr. Roosevelt talks about a three-horse team and the need for getting efficiency in government. One need not traverse far inside the United States government to find men, themselves violently opposed to fascism and dictatorship, who will be able to prove to you rather convincingly that, if really efficient government is wanted, Mr. Mussolini and Mr. Hitler have the most direct machinery for achieving it. Not having to bother with a parliamentary body, being able to issue decrees that have the force of law, there can be no doubt that a one-man government has it all over a democracy. If absolute efficiency is the goal, then democracy has plenty of defects. Indeed, it may be said that the price of liberty is the cumber-someness of democracy.

Brandeis View
This view was expressed by no less a liberal than Justice Brandeis 11 years ago, when he was 69 years of age and presumably then considering the new age standards, in the full vigor of his liberalism. Said Justice Brandeis in the famous Myers case:

"The doctrine of the separation of powers was adopted by the convention of 1787, not to promote efficiency but to preclude the exercise of arbitrary power. The purpose was not to avoid friction, but, by means of the inevitable friction incident to the distribution of the governmental powers among three departments, to save the people from autocracy."

If the president's plan is adopted, by congress and thus a precedent is established for future enlargement of the supreme court, there would be nothing to prevent some other president of the United States from deciding that 65 or 60 years was an advanced age, depending on how many justices of the supreme court he happened to feel were not rendering decisions in accordance with his wish. By adding justices who did agree with a president's views, the way is opened up to influence decisions of the supreme court by merely adding justices.

Ask About Future
When Mr. Roosevelt says his record as governor and president is sufficient assurance that religious freedom would not be interfered with by his proposal, the opponents of the proposition ask how Mr. Roosevelt can give assurance against the views of some other administration or congress after both he and the present members of congress have retired from office.

Indeed, if it is constitutional for congress to provide not a fixed court of a definite number, but a court of fluctuating size—something that has never before been done—then the basis for such action opens up a variety of possibilities. The Roosevelt plan declares that new justices shall be added contingent upon the age of present justices. The same principle can be applied to decisions. In other words, it could be set forth in the act of congress that any number of justices could be added whenever a majority of the court ruled adversely on the federal government's power to regulate wages or hours or anything else desired by the legislative body and the president. To make the size of the court contingent on age is not very different from making it contingent on some other characteristic of the supreme court, including the principles of its decisions.

Seen As Violation
The view is growing here, therefore, that Mr. Roosevelt's plan is not at all within the constitution, as he argues, but plainly in violation. The president says, for instance: "I suggest only the addition of justices to the bench in accordance with a clearly defined age limit."

But the constitution sets forth that supreme court justices shall hold office for life, and there is no congressional power whatever to set any age limit or to impair the decisions of the supreme court by an attempt to defeat the life tenure provision of the constitution.

The question being asked, now that the president has made over the radio his best arguments for the enlargement plan, are numerous, but none more vital than this: what powers does the federal government lack which could arrest a boom like that of 1929?

The query, stated in another way, is what can anybody suggest in addition to the powers over banking, over security exchanges, over credit and finance generally—powers already upheld by the supreme court—that may be urgently needed to meet the crisis of which the president speaks.

No Request For Power
Inquiry here does not disclose any request of congress for more powers to deal with a financial or economic crisis. There is, to be sure, much discussion of how to handle the labor problem, but the supreme court has not yet acted on the Wagner labor act, and labor unions themselves, when it suits them, do not wish to avail themselves of the protection of the Wagner act, as, for

Plan to Continue Play In Volleyball Tourney

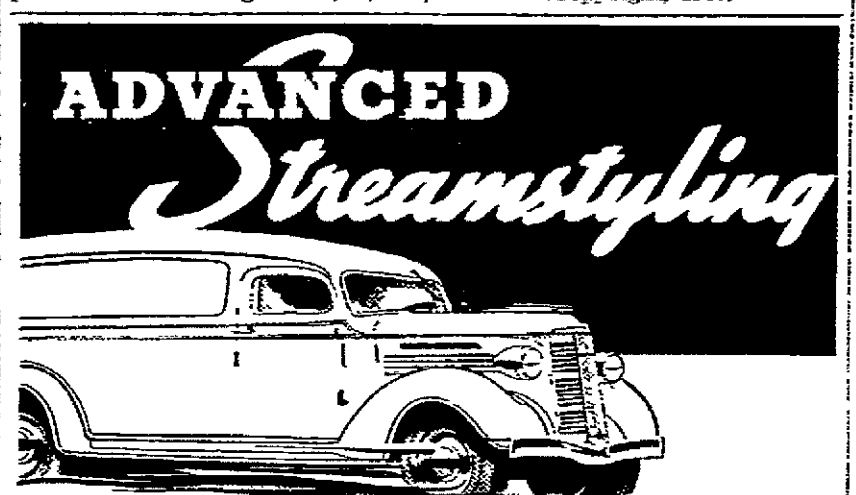

The second of a series of volleyball matches will be played by Rotary, Lions and junior chamber of commerce teams Friday night at the Y. M. C. A. The tournament is part of the regular inter-club olympics which will be held March 22 at the "Y."

First place in volleyball counts 25 points with second place, 15, third place, 10, and fourth place, 5. In last week's matches, the Rotary club won two games from the Lions and junior chamber of commerce teams while the Lions were administering two defeats to the Jaces. The Kiwanis club has not entered a team in the tourney.

instance, in the General Motors strike.

The principal point made by several members of congress who are inclined to be sympathetic with Mr. Roosevelt's plan is that, even if it were adopted, it would never achieve the purposes he has outlined. Impracticability is suggested on every side, particularly by those who declare that the president could get no assurance of unanimity with a court of nine men, much less with a court of fifteen men. Knowing the niceties of legal interpretation, most members of congress who have been lawyers will admit that even a three-judge court does not always look at questions alike, and that the chances of disagreement where nine or fifteen are concerned increases immeasurably. Rarely has any act of congress ever been passed by unanimous vote or even by a two-thirds vote. If the legislators differ, it is natural that justices will differ too.

Frank Dismissal Is Discussed at Senate Hearing

Bill Provides Senate Confirmation of Appointments by Regents

Madison—(P)—The senate committee on education and public welfare heard the first legislative reaction to the dismissal of Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, at a hearing yesterday on the Cashman-Shearer bill.

This measure provides that all appointments of university regents by the governor must be confirmed by the senate.

Senator Conrad Shearer, (R), Kenosha, one of the authors of the bill, referred indirectly to the removal of Dr. Frank by the board of regents as "an important event" near the start of the year.

Shearer called the bill a "good foundation" for any other changes that legislators might desire to make later in the method of choosing regents.

Emphasizing he was "not expressing any criticism of the governor's appointment," he added, "if there is politics in the selection of regents, this bill will help materially to reduce it."

Against Election

He took cognizance of proposals for election of regents by the general public or by university alumni and expressed the opinion the alumni are too widely scattered about the country for any representative vote.

Senator John Cashman, (P), Denmark, co-author of the bill, declared the tremendous potential power of the regents makes it advisable that the senate have the right to act on appointments.

"We have great confidence in the senate," he said.

Several vocational school directors registered support of a bill by Senator Earl Leverich, (P), Sparta, authorizing local boards of education or boards of vocational education to establish college programs in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin extension division.

Supporters included Herb Heilig, Appleton; A. L. Nimtz, Manitowish; T. S. Rees, Racine; Earl M. Bowler, Rhinelander; L. R. Evans, Sheboygan; and Harry Belman, West Allis. William Rasche of Milwaukee also favored the bill, but suggested an amendment permitting the university to give credit for courses given by vocational schools as well as extension division branches.

Maximum and minimum temperatures of 22 and 11 degrees were reported in the last 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning. # New Teaching Method Explained by Fries

Dr. Horace S. Fries, assistant professor of philosophy at Lawrence college, last night presented a new plan of elementary and high school education to the Parent-Teachers association of Fort Atkinson.

Basing his conclusions on recent experiments in applying the so-called kindergarten method to higher grades, Dr. Fries outlined a system employing a positive philosophy rather than a negative one to the teaching of children. "The old system, which still prevails," he said, "implies a constant need for discipline and restraint. It has been referred to as 'Stissillity.'"

The method suggested here centers attention on the student rather than on the teacher. The teacher must be alert and must study the student for his special aptitudes. The method has been used so far chiefly in private schools, and has been too often regarded as the prerogative of the wealthy who can afford such individual attention.

Sheboygan Boy Asks Treasury Chief For Gold to Mold His Toy Soldiers

Sheboygan—(P)—Twelve-year-old Calvin Kuiper will have to mold his army of toy soldiers from metal other than Uncle Sam's gold—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau is sorry but he just cannot meet the boy's request for a few bars.

Calvin received a moulding set for Christmas and set about building his legions. He soon exhausted his lead supply. Then, inspired by a news item, he wrote Morgenthau: "I read in the paper that you are shipping a lot of gold bars to Kentucky."

"Would you please send me a few gold bars so I can make some more soldiers?"

"They should look even more beautiful than the lead soldiers."

"I will send you some if they turn out all right."

Morgenthau's private secretary, H. S. Klotz, mentioned the secretary's interest in Calvin's success with lead soldiers and wrote:

"We agree with you that gold ones would probably be even more handsome, but I am sorry to say that Mr. Morgenthau could not send you any of the gold bars which have been sent to Kentucky. He does not own this himself, but it is entrusted to his care by the government, and so you see it would not be right for him to give any of this away."

"We hope that you may succeed in finding some other material from which to cast your soldiers."

Calvin melted an old lead pipe today.

Leviton Wins in Assembly Test on Beverage Division

Lower House Votes Civil Service Rating for Inspectors, Employees

Madison—(P)—The assembly voted today to leave the state beverage tax division under the jurisdiction of Treasurer Sol Levitan and to give blanket civil service rating to its inspectors and employees.

By a vote of 58 to 39 it engrossed a bill carrying an amendment by Assemblyman Elmer Genzmer (D), Mayville, who said his purpose was to permit "Uncle Sol" to keep the 55 employees he has named since the first of the year, and to retain also, a similar number of appointees of his Democratic predecessor, Robert K. Henry.

Immediately after the vote was taken the house, on motion of Speaker Paul Alfonsi, tabled a bill introduced at the request of Governor LaFollette, which would have placed the division under the tax commission and required its employees to take civil service examinations after July 1.

Changes in Bill

Assemblyman Vernon Thomson (R), Richland Center, was the author of the bill engrossed but when the house got through with it the measure was far different from the one he introduced.

Thomson also proposed to transfer the division to the tax commission but to impose civil service tests at once.

When the Progressives, aided by a few Democrats, adopted the Genzmer amendment, Thomson charged that members of the house "apparently had entered into a deal" with the state treasurer.

He said he could no longer vote for his own measure because it was a "pie counter" bill.

Genzmer denied there was any "deal" and asserted that he had no one in the division to protect.

Ordinarily the revised bill will come up for final passage early next week, but the opposition indicated there would be a move for reconsideration.

His driver's license also was recommended for revocation for one year.

James Abrahamson cream hauler for the Weyauwega condensery, pleaded guilty of operating trucks without permits from the Wisconsin Public Service commission, without filing insurance policies with the commission and operating trucks without having the net and gross weights written on the sides of the trucks. He was arraigned this morning on charges preferred by J. E. Kreutzman, traffic officer for the public service commission, and was fined $25 and costs and given an alternative of 30 days in the county jail. He paid the fine.

PRESIDENT WILLING TO RUN ALL

The President has moods.

In his victory dinner address he was a strident fire alarm. Civil war was on the horizon. There was talk of Lincoln and of Buchanan and how the latter had failed to have the national house in order when the former took office. Indeed, there was a crisis at the door. It was banging and kicking and about to tear down the house. The only thing that could save it off was submission to the plan of the President.

The man who told us in his first inaugural address that our worst enemy was fear now appealed to fear above everything else in order to augment the powers in his hands.

But the reaction of the country to Mr. Roosevelt's Victory dinner address was highly unsatisfactory. In fact there was no spontaneous acclaim for it. It became necessary to send out part of the huge army feeding at the public treasury in order to beat the tom-toms and arouse the electorate. And even then but little enthusiasm was found or could be manufactured.

On Tuesday night the President again referred to his three horses doing the plowing. He says they should pull in unison and that they have not.

Let us see what he really means. Congress is a good horse because it abdicated its powers, turned them over to the executive. The supreme court is a balky horse because it would not. The right picture in the President's mind of that furrowed field consists of a well bitted congress and a well bitted supreme court with the reins running back to a president who wields the whip and drives them whither he will.

Somebody must have told the President that his reference to the plowing horses was a good one, else he would hardly have repeated it. If he didn't have so many sycophants around him whose hands are raw from clapping he might have been told that he could hardly have presented a worse example.

We understand the President is a very popular man. The election demonstrated that. But we wonder whether people really have the confidence in him they would have were he more consistent.

Have we so soon forgotten the campaign and all the spierdidi addresses of the President? He painted a picture of the country that would please the eye of the most fastidious. The industries were humming. The farmers were singing as they steamed down the fields on their tractors. The treasury department was choked with increased taxes coming in to pay the bills. And then the President would draw himself up proudly and tell us, "We planned it that way."

Sudden! The scene became overcast. The spit and a chilled breeze blast from the northeast. And almost without warning a crisis is upon us. The President can even see the smoke of civil war a short ways ahead.

The only thing that we can see to cause such a reversal of conditions is the election of Mr. Roosevelt himself. That is about the only thing of any consequence that has happened since he painted the last picture.

And not only is disaster at our doorway but we must not hesitate a second. We must have action now, said the President, and in every copy of the manuscript sent out the word "now" was spelled in capitals. No time for delay. No time for thought. No time for anything but an immediate action altering a tradition in our government that has existed for 150 years.

On Tuesday night Mr. Roosevelt became a constitutional lawyer.

He says the constitution is plain and therefore the supreme court is clearly wrong.

Of course, the constitution is plain in some particulars and exceedingly plain in others. Those provisions do not make any trouble.

The President, however, gave us an example, and an excellent one, of how he would construe laws by the construction that he put on his own language.

Mr. Roosevelt wrote the Democratic national platform in 1936. Here are some words he put into it:

"If these problems cannot be effectively solved by legislation within the constitution, we shall seek such clarifying amendment as will assure to the legislatures of the several states and to the congress of the United States, etc."

We would have said that this language was used expressly for the purpose of conveying the opinion of the people that Mr. Roosevelt would not try to pack the court or otherwise trip or thwart it.

Mr. Roosevelt now says that this language should be construed as including his present effort to take over the court.

If any justice of the supreme court ever gave such a tortured meaning to anything in the constitution as Mr. Roosevelt gives to his own language then indeed there would be pandemonium in the country.

And what shall we say of a President who intended to pack the court but drew a platform pledge to the people in such a way as to lead them to a contrary opinion and then sought election upon that opinion?

From out the confusion that is sometimes made by clever language which is as often as not, as the President very aptly shows, drawn to conceal thoughts as well as to present them, it seems to us that the entire burden of the President's recent speech was that he, the President, should be permitted to construe and apply the constitution, and that when the supreme court does not do his bidding in this regard it is perfectly legitimate for him to add members to it in the expectation that they will do his will.

Mussolini was at least frank enough to toss his congress out the window. Hitler was plain enough to establish new courts to do his bidding. Stalin was frank enough to draw the blade across the throats of those who differed with him.

Verily it is a Caesar and not a crisis that is thumping at our door.

REDS AND REBELS

How loudly and proudly man may propose, and how feebly dispose, was verified the other day out on the tossing waters of the Bay of Biscay, nearly a hundred miles from Bilbao, as big shells from a Rebel cruiser plowed their way into the hold of a Loyalist freighter.

It was the end of the Mar-Cantabrico, the boat that was at New York in January and raced out of the harbor with American airplanes lest a recent enactment of congress prevent its sailing. Down to Vera Cruz went this boat, to Mexico, land of friendship for all Reds, and there it was piled high with munitions. It was a great prize for the Rebels.

The Mar-Cantabrico is likely to invite another odd comment. Why did this vessel, after its long stop at New York and Vera Cruz, carry back to Spain only a handful of volunteers for the Red army?

What is all this hollow talk about laying down our lives for our brethren in distress over at Madrid?

The Reds, it seems, are a good deal like the miser at a church service who has a hurry-up engagement when it's time to pass the plate. There is plenty of reality about them when it comes to facing the music.

Opinions Of Others

A USELESS HAZARD

Courage and common sense were united in the remarks of Dr. James H. Kimball, chief of the United States Weather Bureau in the north, when he opposed the suggested air race from New York to Paris to commemorate the special flight of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on May 20-21, 1927. The veteran weather man has long been known as the patron saint of ocean fliers. His patent study of their problems and careful maps of the conditions they were likely to meet over the treacherous North Atlantic have played a major part in the success of the series of pioneer flights, beginning with that of Lindbergh, which have linked the United States and Europe. His opposition to the proposed race comes, therefore, with special force.

As he rightly points out, such a race could serve no real constructive purpose for the advancement of aviation. Air races have been conducted not to attempt to set a new record, but to attempt to set a new record. The Lindbergh feat, but in August, so that the proposal has not also any apostolic significance. It now appears that the National Aeronautics association, which would handle the American end of the undertaking, if it is carried out, has agreed with the French government proposal that it be not even a race of fliers against fliers, but of fliers—starting at any time they please during the month—against that single-engine airplane, not to mention multi-engine airplanes, to which entrants for the race are to be limited, can fly the Atlantic. All comparatively small craft do so, however, under conditions of immense overload of fuel, no practical payload and at extreme hazard. The time has certainly arrived when the orderly development of transatlantic service with large flying boats, in which the experimental stage will be reached this year by Pan American Airways, Imperial Airways of Great Britain and probably other international interests, of infinitely more value to real progress in the air than could be any race against time for a prize.

Insofar as celebration of the tenth anniversary of Colonel Lindbergh's magnificent exploit, which remains unrivaled in its accuracy of performance, is concerned, that matter already seems to be well in hand, in charge of a very representative committee of nearly 150 leaders in military, industrial and civic life of which General John J. Pershing is honorary chairman, Orville Wright, honorary vice chairman, Major General James G. Harbord, active chairman, and Colonel George W. Burrell, chairman of a strong executive committee.—New York Times.

PAINFUL TRUTHS

Antigo

Jonah:

There is not going to be any business recovery if the men who need it can prevent it.

After watching Spain, we realize that our civil war was just a good-natured argument.

It's hard to see how Europe can hope to have a war if we neither fight nor finance it.

Spain has its own gentle method of solving the problem of over-population.

—DEE JAY CEE

It isn't "sit-down" strike or "sit down" strike, but "sit-down" strike that's correct, the C.I.O. gravely informs us.

And, once the sit-down strikes get prices way up ahead of the average consumer's income, the sit-down strikers may discover that our average consumer can instigate a no-buy strike that will raise merry heck.

No buy. No pay. No wages. Phooie.

It's a terrible prospect if the boys are reasonable.

I DOUBT IF SHE KNOWS KUTZ

Jonah:

Please, won't you ask Kutz to notice Marge. Just once, so she won't have to keep using your column to express her obvious infatuation for him? Also, I'm plenty sore at her for that crack about high school gossip columns a while back. Yeah! I'm plenty sore!!

—SUE

I got a big kick out of the "High School Soots" pet cat the other day. It's name is Kutzie. Pretty cute, eh?

No, I think it's downright blasphemous. Besides, this continuous barrage of Kutz, Kutz, Kutz, is keeping me pretty upset. Don't you girls know that Kutz stands four feet seven inches tall, is about the same width, has been bald since he was five years old, has a drooping gray moustache, got his preliminary training in the reform school, and is arrested on suspicion every time there's a robbery within fifty miles of Appleton?

Well, it makes a good story and, besides, the situation demands that I do something.

The pressure that is being put on various recalcitrant senators to support the court packing, isn't the pressure of patriotism or party loyalty. It's the pressure of patronage which means money which is something that you and I must supply.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

ONLY A LITTLE WAY TO GO

The burden of his years is heavy now;
He holds a little way to go.
The lines are deep upon his snowy brow.
His eye is dimming and his step is slow.

He who was ever ready with a quip
And merry laugh is gentle now, and quiet.
Through the west window Spring's first breezes trip.

Soon in his garden roses will run riot.

He will not see them, and when colors spill
Upon the western sky, he will be there
Leaning upon a heavenly window sill
Where God's white roses scent the golden air.

Medina hall, owned by William Popp, was burned to the ground late Wednesday evening. While the cause of the fire is unknown, it is believed that the flames were started by defective wiring. Dale and Appleton fire departments were called to give aid, but the latter refused, as officials knew that there was not sufficient water available to battle the flames effectively.

25 YEARS AGO

A special election may be necessary in Outagamie and Shawano counties this spring to elect a state senator to succeed J. Elmer Lehr, now assistant district attorney of Milwaukee county. The special election will be necessary if a special session of the legislature is called, as is now planned. Mr. Lehr moved to Milwaukee in 1911 and his term of office will not expire until Jan. 1, 1915. Thus if a special session of the legislature is held a special election will have to be called to elect a successor.

An attempt to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel of Italy was made by an anarchist in Rome that day. The assassin fired three shots, one of which seriously wounded a body guard. The assassin was arrested.

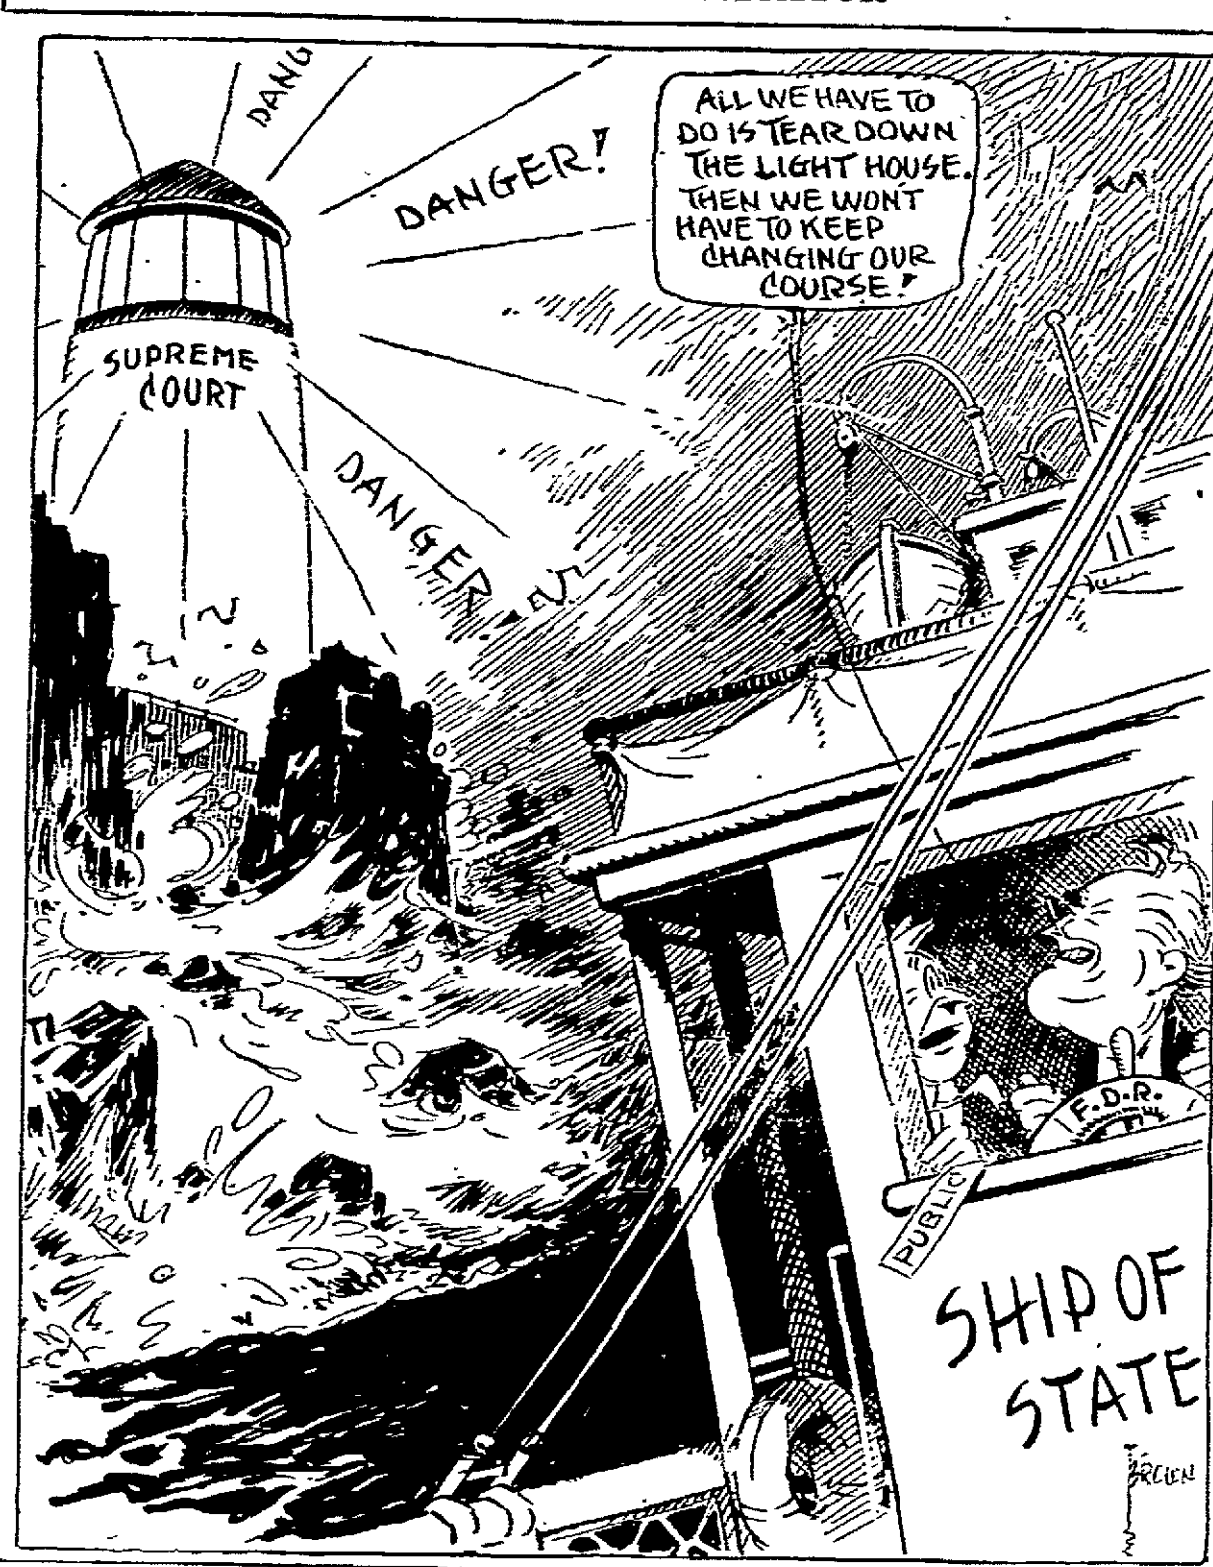

The Fox River Valley association of Commercial clubs was organized at a meeting in Appleton the previous day. Clubs from Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Neenah, Menasha, Appleton, Kaukauna, Green Bay and Marinette were represented at the session. The new association plans to meet with officials of the various railroad serving the valley in an effort to improve passenger and freight service.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

WOULDN'T THIS BURN YOU UP?

Level teaspoonful of sugar, 30 calories, one-half ounce (tablespoonful) of cream, 60 calories, coffee has no caloric value. Man of average size (160 pounds dressed) burns up 90 calories stepping off a mile on the level at a fairly brisk pace. Woman of average size (140 pounds dressed) burns 80 calories keeping company with the guy.

Now when you compute the nutritive value of a couple slices of toast (140 calories) and a modest pat of butter (one-third ounce, 80 calories), and say a wee safter of orange juice pineapple juice, grapefruit juice or a small portion of any fresh fruit in season (60 calories) and maybe a pair of fried eggs (150 calories) you begin to understand why it is advisable for those who can afford it to walk to work, that is, people who live by their wits. Honest working people may ride.

Purposely the caloric value of the average breakfast is underestimated and the calories used up walking a mile overestimated in the foregoing paragraph, just to give an idea. What man is content with two stinky slices of toast when four or five are within reach and nobody looking? For that matter, who would mess round with toast when waffles and syrup or buckwheat pancakes and demure little sausages are at all possible? And only invalids or neurotics limit themselves to a single cup of coffee for breakfast—one might as well go without as have less than two or three cups.

The breakfast as suggested totals less than 600 calories. People who wish to gain weight or who are overweight generally pack in 800 or 900 calories at breakfast, for example:

|  |              |
|--|--------------|
| One-half grapefruit                                    | 100 calories |
| Oatmeal, 1 cup   | 100 calories |
| Teaspoonful sugar                                      | 30 calories  |
| Two ounces milk  | 40 calories  |
| 1 ounce cream  | 120 calories |
| Or two waffles, with butter and syrup                  | 730 calories |
| Or three large pancakes, with butter and syrup         | 600 calories |
| Or two whole wheat muffins with butter and honey       | 620 calories |
| Or two slices toast with butter and marmalade          | 360 calories |
| Coffee, two or three cups, with sugar and 300 calories |              |

The 900 calory breakfast is popular with travelers or guests, as well as with people who stay at home and enjoy living high while they live, for it is not for long. Not a few trenchermen boop it up to a thousand or more calories without any trouble at all, simply adding bacon, ham or kidneys, not to mention sausage again and break down sturdy resolutions.

As a health teacher I am unalterably opposed to skimpy breakfasts or no-breakfasts theories. I believe normal folk should have a substantial breakfast to start the day. But I'm telling you to go easy on the calories if you live by your wits and especially if you take mid-day lunch.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Open Ears
Please state whether a plug of cotton should be worn in the ear after an ear abscess, and for how long after the ear has stopped running. (Miss C. G.)

Answer—Never wear cotton or other plug in ear. It is always better to allow the air to reach the infected part.

Boric Acid
Is boric or boric acid used for eye wash and how much? (Mrs. A. P.)

Answer—Boric acid is old spelling for boric. Usually teaspoonful boric acid to pint or half pint of boiled water is right strength for eye wash or eye drops.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York. This is going to be a swing column. . . . And if you promise not to swing to some other section of the paper while I'm not looking, we'll get down to business and see what there is to it. Swing makes you think of music, and music brings up Vincent Lopez. . . . Not everybody knows that once he studied for the priesthood. . . . Or that he lived nearly four years in a monastery, where conversation was permitted only one hour a day. . . . It isn't generally known either, that Lopez is a working good writer, and that his fingers are just as adept at turning prose from a typewriter as music from a piano. . . . Most of his writings deal with the occult—numerology and astrology—which have been vital factors in his career.

Everybody knows about swing music. . . . And by this time, everybody ought to know about swing pictures. . . . This is the newest thing in newspapers today. . . . Swing pictures are just like a game, and they go just as I hope this column is going. . . . From one to another. . . . Imagine a layout of pictures, each suggesting a layout to another. . . . The first one, for instance, is a picture of Garbo. . . . Garbo is Swedish, and that brings up Swedish punch. . . . So the next picture is a bowl of Scandinavian punch. . . . Punch makes you think of Joe Louis, because he packs one in either hand, and so it goes—to the end of the layout.

On Broadway a layout means dough and dough means money. Money brings up the subject of tariffs. . . . So now we swing to the high tariffs in the glitter spots about town—always they seem higher and higher. . . . Dinner, ordinarily, is listed at about $2.75, but the chances are your bill will be three times that before you get out.

Out is a term employed by umpires, and umpires make you think of baseball. . . . With baseball in mind, we swing to Cuba, where the Giants are training, and where the rookies are swinging at Carl Hubbell's curves. . . . Curves suggest leg-shows, and leg-shows suggest Broadway, and Broadway means theater, so that reminds us that Helen Hayes is going to England, some time in May. . . .

England just now makes you think of the coronation, and that brings up thought of the Duke of Windsor, who won't be there. . . . He will probably be the guest of a New York society woman who recently purchased a villa on the Mediterranean. . . . The Mediterranean's most famous point is Monte Carlo, which suggests gambling. . . . And right now the race track bookies are poring over stakes for the Kentucky Derby. . . . This makes us swing back to America. . . . And I'm getting dizzy from so much swinging. . . . So, with pictures and music and columns, all swinging merrily through the air and the newspapers, I'm going to swing over to this period, right between the comma and the question mark (on this typewriter, anyway) and call it a day.

Your Birthday

"PISCES"
If March 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m. and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 5:45 to 7:45 p. m. and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

It will pay you to try to see the humorous side of what might at first appear to be a trying situation. You may be able to get a lot of fun out of life this day if you do not take things too seriously. The average person's feelings will be susceptible to quick changes. A few well-chosen words can work miracles in the transformation of dispositions, and change mental impressions. Some fragment of the imagination may cause you to get the wrong impression, regarding something that has been said or done by a friend, so do not jump to any hasty conclusion this day, for it is likely to be a wrong one. In commercial circles the gravest danger might be trouble caused by a lack of completeness in written instructions, or omissions of important phrases or terms. Married and engaged couples, as well as suitors, must avoid temptation to be dictatorial for a domineering attitude will bring about discordant conditions.

If a woman and March 12 is your birthday, you perhaps unfortunately, sometimes have fixed opinions and a deaf ear to the reasonable suggestions others may advance to alter them. It is important that you learn to be open-minded and a good listener, if you wish your happiness to increase. You are generous, but very exacting. You may too often take the attitude that there are no extenuating circumstances to justify the breaking of a promise. If you have greater faith in human nature you will have less reason to be distrustful of it. As an office executive, accountant, real estate or insurance broker, restaurant or shop manager, you ought to be very successful. You probably have it in your power to make your married life a very happy one.

The child born on March 12, usually when it reaches kindergarten age, is inclined to want its own way. It must be handled gently, but firmly, and be made to realize the importance of obedience. It will be a foolish parent that will side with this youngster, instead of with its teacher, an any school dispute.

If a man and March 12 is your natal day, you ought to be a clever business man, and very versatile. As a lawyer, writer, actor, clergyman, manufacturer or inventor you may make a fortune.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington.—You have to skip the news, sport and society pages and delve into the financial columns to discover the full part played by Mariner S. Eccles in shaping the government's financial policy. This slim-lined banker came into the New Deal picture as governor of the Federal Reserve board. He had ideas for taking some of the sting out of depressions, present and future, while not pretending a cure.

It was summarized in the term "budget financing." The scheme, stripped of many ramifications, was to let the budget yaw out of balance in depressions while federal spending helped protect the unfortunate. Interest rates should be driven down to invite legitimate investment at the earliest possible moment.

On the upswing, the budget should be drawn to a balance and enough picked off by taxes both to help brake the boom and to offset the excess of spending during the depression.

Interest Rate
He told the house banking committee, however, that he believed it unnecessary to reverse the trend of the interest rate and push it up to help check any excess recovery movement. And on that position he is in one of the most controversial seas of government economics.

He conceded that insurance companies and other "institutional investors" were complaining that the government's policy of financing at low interest rates of the treasury average now is well below three per cent) was dangerous. The danger, as they see it, lies in the possibility that interest on long-term securities, such as bonds, ultimately will prove so unattractive that investment institutions will dump some of their bonds and put the money into the more speculative stock market.

The effect of that, if continued unchecked, might be to skyrocket the stock market and at the same time so damage the bond market that more and more institutional investors would be crowded out of long-term bond securities into the stock market—an upward spiral that takes the breath of people who remember 1928 and 1929.

But, says Eccles to the house committee, that is in part the reason for locking up excess bank reserves by increasing reserve requirements $1,500,000,000 a while back. Simply it is to prevent liquidation of an excessive number of long-term investments the money from which might drift into the stock market.

The Answer
But why not let interest rates rise and not let a check on the boom in the good old way? Mr. Eccles has not publicly answered that one, for to do so would be in effect to recognize that the future will see another depression, great or small. But there is an answer and it may in time turn out to be something akin to Mr. Eccles' answer. Briefly it is this:

During recovery and prosperity periods, capital investments can be made profitably even at high interest rates, but when the recession comes, these high rate investments are the first to let go. If the investments happen to be in production enterprises such as manufacturing, the closing down hurts extremely. The closing down hurts employment, cuts buying power, and generally reduces demand on other industries are hurt and the depression course is accelerated.

Eccles has friends aplenty for his policy—and foes aplenty.

Here and There Around World

NO RADIO BEDLAM

Shanghai, China.—Boasting of 35 radio stations, more than any other city in the world, Shanghai is now attempting to ease the congestion of the ether and raise the standard of broadcasts. The Bureau of International Telegraphs has decided to decrease the number of licenses and has already ordered eight stations off the air.

During 1929 China became radio conscious and practically overnight numerous uncontrolled stations sprang up. Until the bureau took control in 1931, the loudest program in the city was the best.

SCHOOL TABLET CRISIS

Moscow.—The story of how a vodka factory bought a carload of school tablets for substitute labels while the children were forced to write their lessons on margins of old newspapers is told by the newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda as proof of a long existing tablet crisis.

The paper shortage has long been acute in Russia because most of the wood pulp is exported to a ready world market and domestic paper factories are not yet geared to home demands.

The newspaper attributes the crisis to "back passing" among four commissariats.

Bombay.—Voters who did not know how to use a pencil—Candidates tooting a coin—to decide a tie vote—

These are some of the freakish results of the provincial elections in India as now being revealed.

HUNT HEAD HUNTERS

Frankfurt-On-Main.—A German expedition to the Netherlands East Indies, sponsored by the ex-Kaiser's friends, the famous German savant Leo Frobenius, has left here for the Moluccan island of Ceram, whose inland population reputedly can't see the chief objects to trace the links between native cultures in all parts of the globe.

Hackett Outlines Purposes, Ideals Of Fraternities

Nothing Wrong With Them As Human Institutions, Students Told

"There is nothing wrong with American college fraternities as human institutions. The only fault is that some members of them do not live up to their ideals."

This was the statement of Norman Hackett, vice chairman, National Interfraternity conference, at the opening session of Greek Letter Week at Lawrence college last night. Speaking in Memorial chapel to students, faculty members and visitors, Hackett suggested things that fraternities should stand for, and those they should not.

"Don't throw mud at each other," he counseled. "Don't incur financial obligations beyond the means of the chapter; or of its individual members. Don't get too large. Chapters of sixty and seventy are out of all proportion to the fraternity spirit. Twenty-five or thirty is the ideal size."

Is College Home

Some chapters gain a reputation for selecting one type of individual to the exclusion of all others. This is a mistake, Don't let the reputation of being an athletic fraternity or a chapter representing one narrow viewpoint. That defeats the true purpose of the brotherhood. A fraternity house is something more than a boarding house. It is your college home.

"Hell week must go," declared Mr. Hackett. "I know there has been little trouble with it at Lawrence, but in some institutions it has caused a ban on fraternities, and at all institutions today it is in bad repute."

Speech Important

"Diction and speech are things into which every fraternity must look today. It is easy, while at college, to indulge in college slang. But today the man who succeeds can express himself unable to speak and communicate clearly will be em-purged in the business world."

"The fraternity bond is worth much in the world outside the college today. Men know that fraternity men have learned to live with other men, that they have developed the ability to get along with others. A good rule for fraternity men is Shakespeare's injunction to 'Be true to thyself; Thou canst not then be false to any man.'"

Preview of SPRING FASHIONS in AMERICAN-LOOMED WOOL PILE CARPETS AND RUGS

Broadloom in plain colors, or in two-tone effects is becoming increasingly popular. In plain broadloom carpets this year you may choose from dozens of shades, colors formerly available only in specially dyed carpets.

The popular new colors this year are—Rich Burgundy, Dubonet, Claret, Blues, Tans, Browns, Coppers, Greens, and the glamorous pastels—peach, gold, gray, chartreuse, and rose.

These colors are developed not only in plain carpet but in all sorts of fascinating new weaves and effects. Wool pile carpets with a silkier, lustreous look to complement the sheen of rich fabrics and the fine woods of modern furniture. Others have a pebbly surface which is practical as well as smart. More intricate in weave are the solid-color and two-tone effects.

The word "texture" is one which you cannot ignore in any consideration of Spring floor fashions. Texture is the new element in carpet and rug styles, the "plus" that designers have given in addition to color and pattern.

If you would see the very latest and newest in floor coverings, by all means visit Brettschneider's and see the complete showing now on display.

Poetry Magazine Editor Is Visitor at Lawrence

A DISTINGUISHED visitor at Lawrence college, Wednesday afternoon, was Jessica Nelson North, associate editor of Poetry magazine, who spoke at the college convocation in Memorial chapel in the morning and before a group of students in Main hall in the afternoon. Later in the afternoon she was honored at a tea given by the Lawrence Women's association at Russell Sage hall. Miss North, who was graduated summa cum laude from Lawrence college in 1917, in private life is Mrs. R. I. MacDonald, and resides in Chicago.

In her morning address Miss North outlined briefly the various movements in American poetry in the twentieth century, explaining the part that Poetry magazine had played in the renaissance of poetry since its founding by Harriet Monroe in 1912. "The followers of poetry in America are holding their breath for a new movement to emerge at the present time," she stated. "There must be at least 100,000 people writing poetry in this country today. Of this number many are writing acceptable verse, and a good number are producing excellent poetry." In the afternoon Miss North traced the history of Poetry magazine, and told of the part that Harriet Monroe, its founder, who recently died while traveling in South America had had in bringing the Youth Learns About Love In Play, "Ah Wilderness"

"WHAT do you know about real love?" This is the question which Richard Miller asks disdainfully of his little sister in "Ah, Wilderness," which the Lawrence College theater is presenting next Thursday and Friday evenings, March 18 and 19, at Memorial chapel.

Richard is 18 and in love with Muriel McComber. What he doesn't know about real love he finds out during the course of this play which won Eugene O'Neill the Pulitzer prize and which was an outstanding Broadway success and a featured motion picture. Muriel raises Richard to the heights, and then, girl-like, crushes him. By the end of the play, well, Richard is again on the heights, and ready to go to sleep and forget all his cares.

If there is any villain in this comedy, it is Muriel McComber's father, who forbids his daughter to see Richard. But Muriel and Richard take care of that, in a classic way. One of the most entertaining scenes in the play is that in which the two young lovers meet despite Muriel's father.

Losses Bank-Roll One of the best interludes in "Ah, Wilderness" occurs when Richard, after Muriel's father interferes, takes up with Belle, an impromptu, after-dinner speaker in the bar-room. In an attempt to forget Muriel, at the end of the scene, Belle departs with part of Richard's slender bank-roll, and Richard is ejected from the bar-room where he met her after Belle has fallen in with a travelling salesman's 6:30 buffet supper for her at the home of Mrs. A. H. Wickesberg, 632 E. Alton street.

Mrs. Liessman and Mrs. R. Roberts, Beaver Dam, are guests at the home of Mrs. Roberts' mother, Mrs. O. N. Zepherin, 403 N. Durkee street today—and then "and"

Giving Trick Away Often Helps Fulfill Contract

GRACEFUL CONCESSION.
(Copyright 1937, By Ely Culbertson.)

More contracts are fulfilled by the concession of a trick to the defenders at precisely the proper time than by any other single maneuver. But I cannot stress too strongly the "proper time" phrase. The philosophy of experienced players seems to be that they are all right as long as they hang onto the lead. The consequence is that the first seven or eight tricks of their average game contract roll merrily along, but suddenly there is a collapse. In the hand shown below the gracious concession of a trick would have returned a hand some dividend.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 spade 2 diam. Pass Pass
2 spades 3 clubs 3 spades 4 diam.
4 spades Pass Pass Pass

Over West's two diamond bid North had a close decision as to whether to pass or bid two spades. His choice was, in my opinion, the better course. When South had rebid, however, North properly came forth with a raise.

West opened the queen of diamonds. Dummy covered, as did East, and declarer ruffed. A low spade to dummy brought the queen from West, and then declarer took two more rounds of trumps, ending in dummy.

The king of hearts was laid down, and a low heart led toward the ace, declarer hoping that West would have to win this trick and, since he probably would be reduced to diamonds and clubs, would be forced to lay down either the club ace or to lead the top diamond which, after declarer had ruffed, would establish dummy's ten, dummy's fourth heart, becoming an entry.

When East, however, played the heart jack on the second heart lead, declarer was forced to win with the ace and a third round of hearts put East, not West, on lead. The club ten through the king gave the defenders three club tricks for the defeat of the contract.

Had declarer paid a little attention to the bidding and to the particular trump played by West, a far different result might have ensued. West's bidding clearly had marked him with no less than ten cards in the minor suits. The spade queen certainly could be read as a singleton, since West would not be so obliging as to put it up needlessly. After winning with dummy's king, declarer should have seen that his best opportunity lay in stripping West of his exit cards and forcing him to lead a club. Thus, dummy's low diamond should have been ruffed at the third trick, and the ace and king of hearts cashed. With West following to two hearts, the assumption would be that he now was reduced to diamonds and clubs, and of course, he was marked with the diamond jack, both from his bid and from his opening lead. The ten of diamonds now should be led, and declarer should joyfully concede this trick to West while discarding a low club, would have a sorry choice to make. If he led a fourth round of diamonds, dummy could ruff while declarer got rid of another club, and a club lead would promote South's club king to a trick.

This is a "type" that occurs time and again, and it will pay the student to study its possibilities thoroughly.

1 cup mashed potatoes 1/2 cup flour
1 potato 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup corn 3 tablespoons oil
1 teaspoon salt fat

Mix potatoes with corn, salt, egg, flour and baking powder. Melt the fat in a frying pan and add the mixture. Cook until well browned. Turn and brown upper sides.

Soak eggplants on table linen in cold water before putting tablecloth or napkins into the wash. Hot water sets eggplants.

Big, Bulky and Smart

Smart as the crack of a whip is this casual roomy coat which comes straight from Helen Cookman's spring collection. It is made of beige and brown novelty tweed, cut on loose swag lines and finished with huge brown wood buttons. It is designed for motoring and sports wear and is a "find" for the woman who expects to spend her Easter weekend in the country.

Monkeys and Apes

IV—Chimpanzees
Of all members of the monkey tribe, chimpanzees usually are classed as having the best brain power. Claims have been put forth for the gorilla and the orang-utan, but the chimpanzee probably is a little "smarter" than either of them.

The animal performed all the business of a sailor. She would splice ropes, and help in unfurling the sails. In fact the sailors thought of her as one of themselves.

"The boat was bound for the United States, but the poor chimpanzee did not live to see that country. One day the first mate struck her as a punishment for some little misdeed. From that moment onward, she would not take any food. On the fifth day she died, from grief and hunger. All the sailors mourned her as a lost friend."

Chimpanzees have been tamed and placed in a large number of zoos, though there are not so many of them in zoos as orang-utans. As captives, they have shown the ability to perform all sorts of tricks. These include drinking from a pop bottle and riding on a bicycle.

A Chimpanzee.

Chimpanzees live in central Africa, and are neighbors of gorillas. They are not so large as gorillas, but the males sometimes grow to a height of four and a half or five feet. Like other apes, they do not have tails.

In certain parts of central Africa, the natives care for—or try to care for—banana groves. A great trouble is that "chimps" come to steal the fruit. Sometimes the natives go forth to hunt down the animals, even climbing trees while trying to locate them and to shoot them with arrow or gun. The natives are clever about tree-climbing, but not nearly so clever as these apes, so the game usually escapes.

An interesting, though rather sorrowful, story was told by a Frenchman who made a trip in an old-

Special Teachers Needed For Handicapped Children

BY ANGELO PATRI
The teacher was new, so when she saw a little girl off in the corner of the playground, her head on her bent elbow, the tears dripping, she went to her and spoke softly. "What is the matter, child?"

The child only shook herself negatively and continued to weep. "O, don't worry about her. She's always like that. She's the dummy. She never knows her lessons so the teacher always has to take her by herself and try to put something into her head. But she can't. Mary Ellen is just plain dumb. Aren't you, Mary Ellen?"

Mary Ellen lifted her face, stained and reddened by tears, and a flash of anger crossed it as she said, "I'm not as smart as you, Jim Towney, but I know better than to hurt folk's feelings the way you do. If I'm a dummy you're a plain pig."

The teacher laughed sympathetically and said, "You don't sound so dumb to me, Mary Ellen. Jim asked for that. Come along and tell me about this. You don't have to stand in the corner and cry. There's surely something better than that to do."

"I can't play jacks, and jumping rope is too fast for me. I was crying because they called me Dummy. I know I'm not smart, but they have no right to call me names. I'd be smart if I could, but I can't."

The reason that Mary Ellen was not smart was the great difference in power between her right eye and her left eye. She couldn't see what other children saw nor see it in the way they saw it. So she couldn't play jacks and she couldn't jump rope. She could not read rapidly because she had to shut first one, and then the other alternatively to see at all. When that condition was remedied Mary Ellen went ahead of Jim Towney, class star.

But it is not always possible to cure the slow child. Sometimes the defect is permanent. Then all we can do is to find the strengths the child possesses and build along them so he can achieve some degree of success.

Such children require the undivided attention of a teacher for some time each day and that is out of the question in classes that number anywhere from thirty-five to fifty. All the best teacher can do in

Prevent Fat By Moving, Stretching

BY ELSIE PIERCE

DON'T be a sit-downer and sit-arounder. Oh, the middle-aged spread will get you if you don't watch out. It's the young thing who keeps moving who invariably keeps young. She has to have the stamina to say "no" to an offer of a "lift" when there's a half-mile walk ahead of her; just as she has the self-control to say "no" to an offer of sweets, an extra helping of rich desserts and such.

Sitting down and sitting around is the surest way to encourage flesh to settle. Then the waist thickens into the hateful spare tire, then the hips become padded and the middle-aged spread starts spreading.

Moving and stretching has exactly the opposite effect. Pull the spinal column up to its full height and you'll discover that you have a very definite waistline. Breathe deeply, stretch, fling and circle arms and you'll soon find that you have a firm, youthful, well-defined bust, too. Roll about a bit and you'll have hips not padded—but the charming, flowing, slightly rounded line.

One thing about the middle-aged spread—you don't have to be middle-aged to have it; there are any number of young girls who, sadly enough, have the spread appearance. On the other hand there are many women of fifty who have kept youthful figure lines. So I repeat you don't have to be middle-aged to have the so-called middle-aged spread, but it certainly makes one look old who has it.

Good Morning Exercises

Stretching exercises are as good as any to keep upper and lower parts of the torso in trim, and keep each part going about its own business. Immediately on awaking, throw off covers, breathe deeply and start the stretching. Stretch hands and arms high overhead. Stretch toes downward. Pull as though you were trying to stretch the figure apart at the waist.

Then try this one. Lying on back on the floor, brace feet under a heavy piece of furniture. Palms close to thighs. Without moving knees, try to lift upper part of body slowly. You have to be very good to come to sitting position. Do this slowly. Now just as slowly down again. Don't strain the back muscles. If you are not accustomed to this exercise do it just once or twice at first, then gradually add.

My complete set of Exercises is yours for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

A B C'S IN MANNERS
1.—Is the asset people usually speak of as charm only a transient attraction, which one either has or hasn't? And is it confined to people only? If so, I can't account for having heard of a charming house or for your having written about charm in china. Can elderly people have it as well as young people, and does it in any case depend upon good looks? I have been given a paper to write in school on the subject of charm and after spending all this evening really thinking about it I'm more confused than ever. Will you explain the meaning of charm in its best sense?

Answer: Charm is something for which the world has been trying to find the perfect definition for the last three hundred years. The host-step in his social adjustment. If after that he finds some one thing in which he can shine he has achieved his salvation. What he needs most of all is the respect of his mates and that is about the best way to win it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to "manners" questions from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent, stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Don't Give Up Too Much For Lover Too Far Away

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl of 20. I have a good job and a good home. Also have a boy friend working his way through college. We are very fond of each other, or think we are, and he does not want me to have dates with any other boys while he is away. He has no money and he will be several years before he is able to marry. What is your advice? SUE.

Answer: My earnest advice to you is to have all the dates and all the fun that you can and refuse to accede to the boy's selfish and unreasonable request that you make a lady hermit of yourself.

There are many good reasons for this. One is that you will virtually throw away your youth and all the happiness that belong to youth if you do. You will have a pretty thin time of it waiting for five or six years for your boy friend to finish school and get into some business. You will be as much cut off from all pleasure as if you had retired from life. There will be no parties, no dancing up with other boys and girls. You will be laid on the shelf and get old and desiccated and unattractive. No man has a right to ask that much of a sacrifice of a girl and she is lacking in all good, hard common sense if she makes it.

He won't make the same sacrifice for her. He won't give up all feminine companionship because he is separated from her. While she is sitting at home with Mamma and Papa at an evening, writing him long letters telling him how lonely some she is without him, he is gadding around with other girls. And no blame to him, either. Youth craves companionship and pleasure, and it is a natural and right that it should have it.

Furthermore, the more young people see of other boys and girls, the better chance they have of testing out whether their own feelings and finding out whether what they think is love is merely a passing fancy, or an undying passion. It is only by giving many boys and girls the once over that they can be certain that they have picked out the one they really prefer. To tie oneself up for life with the first boy or girl with whom you ever get acquainted shows as little judgment as to buy the first article you see in a shop without looking over the stock.

Another reason why a girl makes a mistake in refusing to go about with other boys when her boy friend is absent, and there will be test your own knowledge and that of your friends and see how many questions out of twenty-five you can answer? Mrs. Post has prepared a new etiquette test just for boys and girls and will be glad to send it to you if you clip this notice and send it with a stamped (3-cent) self-addressed envelope to her in care of this newspaper.

long years before they can possibly marry, anyway, is because she has no certainty that he will ever come back. Tastes change, especially in youth. Absence dulls affection and propinquity does its deadly work and only too often the young man forgets the girl he left behind him and dreads nothing so much as going back to her.

Or, as is equally likely, the girl's taste may change and when the man she has waited for comes back she wonders what she ever saw in him that made her think she was in love with him. Many a girl is an old maid because she let some monomaniac cut her out of all dates with other men while he was away. And many a man marries the girl he has already tired of because he feels in honor bound to do so after keeping her from marrying any body else.

Of course, if a man is definitely engaged to a girl and the wedding day is in sight, he has a right to expect her to refuse dates with other boys, but not otherwise. And it is far better for both of them if she refuses to be party to such an unequal bargain.

Dear Miss Dix—At what age is a girl considered an old maid and at what age is a man considered an old bachelor? THREE OLD MAIDS.

Answer:

These terms are virtually obsolete. Men and women are spoken of as young or old, but they are not put into any particular class because they are not married. The nearest definition that I can give is to say that a woman is an old maid when she gives up hope of marrying, and a man is an old bachelor when he determines not to marry, and these states of mind may be arrived at at any age.

Postoffice Alligator

Mystery Is Solved

Rome, N. Y.—(AP)—The mystery of Rome's postoffice alligator has been solved. The relief of postal workers whose burden of feeding the creature has been shifted to the rightful, although unsuspecting owner—Deios A. Humphrey.

The alligator was discovered one day wandering about in the post-office. Postal workers not only had little idea of what to feed it, but could not discover where it came from.

The mystery was finally unraveled when a box, empty and with a hole in its side, was discovered in the outgoing parcel post. It had been addressed to Humphrey's son in law, an aunt of Pass-a-Grille Beach, Fla.

Properly repacked, the alligator then continued the journey to his destination.

The new streamlined train, Zephyr, ran the 1100 miles from Denver to Chicago at an average of 78 miles an hour.

KILL THAT COLD

Give It No Chance to Survive Thru the Use of Half-way Measures!

Treat a cold to kill it, not to coddle it! Many a cold lightly treated turns into something worse—"a cold where it lives"—in the system! That means to take an internal treatment.

Hit it with a cold medicine, not with a preparation good for all kinds of ailments.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is the treatment you want.

First of all, it is a cold tablet, made expressly for colds.

Second, it is internal medication and of fourfold effect.

Here's what it does:

First, it opens the bowels, an advisable step in the treatment of a cold.

Second, it checks the infection in the system, a vital step.

Third, it relieves the headache and fever.

Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

That's the fourfold treatment a cold calls for and in Bromo Quinine you get it in the form of a single tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain.

The sugar-coated are exactly the same as the regular, except that the tablets are coated with sugar for palatability.

When you feel a cold coming on, don't "monkey around" with half-way measures.

Go right to your druggist for a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine tablets.

Start taking the tablets immediately, two every four hours. Used in time, Bromo Quinine will usually break up a cold in 24 hours and that's the speed you want.

Road Commission Sponsors State Safety Meeting

Outagamie and Adjoining Counties Urged to Send Representatives

Thomas F. Davlin, chairman of the state highway commission, today urged Outagamie and adjoining counties to send representatives to the first annual Wisconsin highway safety conference at Madison March 23 and 24.

F. R. Appleton, Outagamie county highway commissioner and chairman of the Outagamie County Street and Highway Safety Council, and Miss Agnes J. Malone, highway department bookkeeper and secretary of the council, are among those who have received announcements of the conference.

Ray Jensen, W. L. Borden and Robert H. Cox of Calumet county; W. E. Hoken, Harold Hens, James O. Hanson, C. H. Bacher, Lester M. Enns, A. R. Gmeiner and L. M. Lamkins of Waupaca county; Floyd L. Wright, R. C. Salisbury, E. M. Bird, and F. A. Robinson, Winnebago county also have received notices.

One of the features of the meeting will be the presentation by Governor LaFollette of bronze awards from the state highway commission to counties that had banner records for highway safety in 1936. The names of the winners have not yet been announced.

The awards will be made on a basis of reduction of fatalities and accident prevention activities of safety councils.

Open to all interested. The letters received in this county telling about the state safety conference point out that the March 23-24 meeting in Madison is open not only to safety council members and to safety workers from civic, fraternal and benevolent organizations, but also to all persons interested in promoting safer highway conditions in Wisconsin.

Dr. Ralph Lee, safety director of General Motors, and Judge John Gutknecht, the Chicago municipal traffic court, are expected to be the principal speakers at the 2-day conference.

Dr. Lee, who conducted the first traffic school for officers, and investigated the first traffic school for law violators in Detroit, already has accepted an invitation to speak during the Wisconsin safety conference. Nationally known as a safety worker, he is one of the most colorful figures now engaged in the promotion of safer motoring. He is an ordained Episcopal minister, a master mechanic and a licensed pilot. Weather permitting, he will fly his own plane from Detroit to Milwaukee for the conference.

Judge Gutknecht, who may be the other principal speaker, is famed throughout the nation for his traffic court proceedings, which are broadcast regularly over WGN and other Chicago stations. Aside from his rigid handling of traffic violations, and his unusual treatment of chronic cases, he is especially interested in the younger generation, and in making street and sidewalk conditions safer for city children. He was one of the speakers at the last National Safety congress in Atlantic City in October.

Native Wisconsin Trees

Conservation Commission Tells How to Identify Them, Discusses Their Value to State

ROCK ELM
The rock elm reaches its best development in Wisconsin on the well-drained soils of Langlade and Shawano counties, but it found southward and westward throughout the state on a variety of soils. It attains a height of 80 to 100 feet with 60 feet of clear length, and a diameter of 3 feet, but on poorer sites is often short and limby. It seldom forks like the other elms, but retains a straight central trunk. The leaves are simple, alternate, 2 to 2 1/2 inches long and more obtuse-pointed than the other species. The flowers are greenish and appear in early spring. The fruit is similar to the other elms but has a shallow notch at the end. It ripens when the leaves are half grown. The bark is 1 to 1 1/2 inch thick, gray and divided into broad flat ridges. Corky ridges or wings develop on the bark of the twigs. The wood is heavy, hard, very strong and tough, close grained. It is largely used for wagons, agricultural implements, and chairs. Large square hewed timbers have been exported to England for ship timber. Owing to the value of the wood, the rock elm should be favored in woodlots and forests where it occurs. It is also used for shade and ornamental planting.

Court of Honor Is Held at Kimberly

Scout Executive Is Speaker at Ceremonies in Village Hall

Kimberly—All the average Boy Scout needs is a pat on the back to help him with his program, Walter Dixon, scout executive, Appleton, told a large number of parents and scouts at a court of honor rally at the village hall Tuesday evening. He said that scouts work with church and school, and that each scout makes the task easier for his teacher and pastor.

Mr. Dixon declared that the first committee in charge of Troop 18 made it possible to have Boy Scouts in Kimberly. He praised the work of Ed Banker, who is in charge of the Kimberly group. The scout executive explained that the Kimberly scouts were among the best group in camp last year, and said that he expected to see another large number of Troop 19 this year at camp.

Awards were presented to the following scouts: Tenderfoot—Dean Barrard, Fred Porter, Raymond Ebbens, James Van Elsen, Jack Van Lieshout, Alphonse Kneepkins, Kenneth Dietzen and Joe Van Daalwyck. Second class—Gerome Wyngaard, Anthony Rooyakkers, Arnold Hubers, Virgil La Blanc, Donald Verkuilen, Arthur Behling, Thomas Busch and Robert Weyenberg. First class—John Kneepkins and James Fieweger.

Robert Van Alphen was named assistant scoutmaster and William Wachendonck, senior patrol leader. John Kneepkins received a Star award.

Following the court of honor ceremonies Alex Malcolm, fire chief, showed the audience by demonstration and lecture what may happen by cleaning clothes with gasoline or other inflammable fluids in the house. He said rubbing two pieces of cloth during a cleaning process causes a friction which may ignite, resulting in an explosion. He added that a pint of gasoline is equivalent to a pound of dynamite.

Another danger is that the fumes of the liquid always work their way down, possibly to the heating plant. To illustrate he set up a small box with a long spout running through the floor and placed the lighted candle near the end of the spout. The box had a glass front to permit the audience to see what took place. In a small apartment near the top of the box he poured a teaspoonful of gasoline and immediately applied a hot iron which caused the box to fill with fumes. He then opened a slide on the side of the box and the fumes began to go down the spout toward the lighted candle. The fire followed back to the box which caused an explosion, raising the cover off the box.

Monday evening Mr. Malcolm showed the same demonstration at a meeting of the Women's auxiliary.

The Fleur-de-Lis club was entertained by Miss Estella Presgrave at the home of Mrs. Clara LaBerge, Tuesday evening. Schafskopf was played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Frank Courchane, first, and Mrs. James Gaffney, second. Mrs. Arthur Gokey was awarded the traveling prize. Next week they meet at the home of Mrs. August Schwanke.

Children's Books are Discussed at Kimberly

Kimberly—Miss Janette Clausen, children's librarian at Appleton, told a number of mothers at the high school Tuesday evening that often children dislike reading because the books given to them are too difficult or uninteresting. It is the unusual child who does not like reading, the speaker said. She urged parents to give their children books with large print and colorful pictures.

Miss Clausen asserted that if a child likes pets he should have a story book on pets. In this way the youngsters will gradually become interested in reading. Parents may not realize just how much benefit a child gets from reading these simple little story books.

Oconomowoc Will Be Host to State Holstein Meeting

Wisconsin Association to Hold Forty-Fifth Annual Session This Week

The Holstein-Friesian association of Wisconsin will hold its forty-fifth annual meeting at Oconomowoc Friday and Saturday. Holstein breeders of Waukesha, Dodge and Jefferson counties will be hosts and an Outagamie county delegation is expected to participate in the sessions.

The first session of the meeting will be held in the LaBelle theater and will start at 1:30 Friday afternoon. Several speakers of national prominence are scheduled to address the meeting. Stuart Reed of Oconomowoc will speak on "Importation of Dairy Products." Prof. E. B. Hart from the University of Wisconsin will speak on "Improving Nutritive Value of Milk." "Advertising and Selling Holsteins" will be discussed by W. L. Baird, Waukesha, and Prof. A. W. Wright from the University will speak on "The Place of Hybrid Corn in Wisconsin." Several officers of county Holstein associations will give three minute reports on what their county associations are doing.

Friday evening at 6:45 the annual banquet will be held in the Armory with A. C. Osterhuis, president, Dr. Glenn Frank of Madison, will give the address of the evening. Lloyd Birmingham, secretary of the National Dairy show will also appear on the program, and Prof. G. Bonstedt of Madison will show moving pictures of the Texas Centennial and National Dairy show. There will be plenty of entertainment throughout the evening and a dance will follow the banquet.

On Saturday, the program will continue with a tour to Peabody and Osterhuis farms—two well known breeding establishments in Waukesha County. Immediately after the close of the tour the regular business session of the State association will be held in the Strand theater. On the afternoon program, A. J. Glover, president of the national association will discuss "National Association Affairs" and Pern Wright of Madison will explain "Resettlement Administration Aid in Purchase of Purebred Sires." "Rebuilding Our County Associations" will be discussed by Prof. George Humphrey from the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. E. Casida will speak on the "Breeding Efficiency of Dairy Cattle." There will also be several short talks by breeders on the subject, "If I Had to Do It Over Again."

Schedule Meeting of Executive Committee

A meeting of the county executive committee, headed by Supervisor George Schaefer, Greenville, is slated for March 22, according to John E. Hantschel, county clerk. The meeting will be in preparation for the adjourned session of the county board March 29.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY TYRONE POWER

(Pinch-Hitting for Robbin Coons)
Hollywood—Three or four years ago when I was a soda jerk in Cincinnati, I used to kill time during slow periods by reading the movie magazines from the magazine rack. They were full of pictures of people too "glamorous" to be actually alive.

I had always wanted to be an actor and sometimes would think, "Gosh, if I could be one of those." But that was too much to expect. I wasn't the type.

These movie people weren't mere human beings. According to the impression I got of them, they wore diamond-studded socks, their cars they never ate anything so vulgar as corned beef hash; they slept between silver sheets; they had one servant to brush their teeth, another to tie their ties, another to light their cigarettes.

Well, to make a sad story funny, I became one of them. And what a letdown! I drove a Ford with a Ford engine. I found my socks wore through at the toes as quickly as they had back in Cincinnati. I ate corned beef hash and I loved it. And I had to brush my own teeth, light my own cigarettes, tie my own ties and sleep between linen or cotton sheets. To make matters worse, I found that fellow players at the studio (many of them the same people whose pictures I had seen in the movie magazines) did exactly the same things.

That was the beginning of my grand disillusionment. The greatest blow was to find I had to get up at 6:30 every morning. I didn't even have to do that when I worked in the drug store. This early hour was necessary because I had to bathe, dress and eat breakfast at home. Then at the studio I had to undress, shave myself, get made up, and then dress, quite often in full dress as in my current picture "Cafe Metro-pole" (adv.)

When the day's work is over, and I think I deserve some honest-to-goodness relaxation, the director tells me I have five pages of dialog to memorize for next day, and not to forget to go to bed early so that I may look fresh in the morning. Well, I sit up half the night studying the dialog, fall asleep in my chair, then am awakened by my mother who reminds me I should have been in bed long ago. But it seems no sooner do I get into bed, than the alarm clock goes off.

Now I read with envy about soda jerkers or clerks who don't have to get up before 8 in the morning and who don't have to study the next day's concoctions in the evening, and no one cares a whoop whether they look fresh in the morning so long as they don't act fresh to the customers.

Not that I'm complaining, far from it. I asked for it and I got it. And what's more, it's a great life.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—neighbor, it's your price!

Look at the joke they played on us!

This photo shows the front yard of a family living way up on the further side of Leechburg. The young fellow pointing and laughing is showing us how they built a snow man that's supposed to be me.

Harry E. Wilken

Folks act like they've found a Long Lost Friend

—the way they're making so much of us and this Family Recipe of ours!

My brother-in-law was just remarking to me the other day. Harry, he said—it looks like folks had found a long lost friend, the way they're acting about our Family's whiskey! And I guess in a way you might call The Wilken Family Whiskey a long lost friend at that! For our family has been at it a long long time—making whiskey for three whole generations. But we never put up this personal Family Recipe of ours for everybody to enjoy till only just lately.

And folks are taking to it like as if they'd never found a really mild and tasty whiskey in their whole life. And I guess the neighborly price being asked for our Family's whiskey is pleasing everybody pretty much too!

Board Members Raise Own Pay To $5 Per Day

Winnebago County Motorcycle Officers Have Wages Increased

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—After a busy morning of committee meeting the Winnebago County board members completed their 2-day session Wednesday afternoon, raising their own wages from $4.50 to $5 a day before they went home.

The request of the village of Bute de Mors for $200 to make up a deficit sustained during their recent centennial celebration was refused after the request was found to be out of order.

A petition with 61 signatures asking for the relocation of County Trunk MM near Winchester was referred to the highway committee.

By a close vote of 22 to 20 a resolution was passed raising the salary of county supervisor. After some argument and a ruling from District Attorney Lewis C. Magnuson that could legally be done, the measure was passed.

Winnebago county motorcycle officers also were given a raise in salary by the county board. The salary rate was raised from $302.50 per month to $325 per month, plus a bonus of $25 per month. It was stated this amounted to a raise of $20 per month. The vote was 36 to 6.

Favor Program
A resolution by E. G. Steinheilber, Oshkosh, asking for $500 as the sponsor share for a county WPA recreational program was adopted.

Supervisor stated that this contribution would mean that Winnebago county would receive back more than $7,000 in federal wages. The identical procedure used in the Paine Lumber company delinquent tax certificates was followed on a request from the Oshkosh post of the American Legion. It was voted 38 to 2 to divert tax delinquent certificates of $600 of the American Legion clubhouse at "less than their face value." It was stated the legion would then bid in the property at approximately $200.

A request from the Wisconsin Public Service corporation to install a power and light line in the village of Winchester was adopted. A request from the Oshkosh janitor, Carl Hauser, for a salary increase was denied by the public building committee, because of lack of appropriation.

Seek More Funds
A memorial was sent to the legislature from the highway committee, petitioning for more snow removal funds and the bonds and salaries committee presented the board with a salary classification schedule. This ranged county employees in seven sections, making no changes in the present schedule.

A remittance of $5,533.33 from the state for old age assistance was received and accepted.

The regular spring meeting of the board will be held in May after the election. Chairman Shea stated, when the organization of the new board will take place.

Suit Brought by State Is Taken Under Advisement

Claim Cooke and Brown
Co. Interferes With Navigation

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—Following two days of argument and taking of testimony in the suit brought by the state of Wisconsin against the Cook & Brown Lime Company seeking $13,700 damages and abatement of the company's alleged practice of dumping waste sand into Lake Butte des Morts, Circuit Judge Fred E. Beglinger late Wednesday took the case under advisement.

The state, represented by Assistant Attorney General J. E. Messerschmidt and Adolph Kannenberg, representing the Wisconsin Public Service commission, claim dumping of waste sand from a washing plant and extending of a 300-foot breakwater out into the lake constituted a hazard to navigation.

A trip was made to the Cook & Brown Company sand pit and gravel plant by counsel for plaintiff and defendant, and Judge Beglinger. Arguments concerning the definition of "navigable waters" and the "meander line" established along the lake shore some time ago by the United States War Department, were made by Kannenberg. Testimony also taken from employees of the Cook & Brown Company who operated the sand plant, as well as from owners of adjacent shoreline property.

Both Messerschmidt and Kannenberg referred to the suit as a most important "test" case, and asserted the outcome would influence action on many similar suits brought against individuals alleged to be encroaching on Wisconsin's natural resources.

Lions State Pin Meet to Begin at Menasha Saturday

90 Teams Will Compete at Hendy Alleys Over
5-Week Period

Menasha—Menasha Lions club's first major project, the Wisconsin State Lions Bowling tournament, will get underway at 7 o'clock Saturday night when booster bowling teams from Appleton, Neenah and Menasha together with city officials' teams from the Twin Cities open the tourney at the Hendy alleys.

Reception committees will be on hand to welcome bowlers and members of the Menasha club will score for visiting teams. Roman Fahrback is the chairman of the committee and will be assisted by Al Landig, Lawrence Kraft, Harold Berro and William Hahn. A pep band comprised of members of the Menasha High school unit will entertain bowlers.

Featuring the tournament will be an industrial exhibit in which most of the industrial plants in the Twin Cities will show articles made by their company. Since the Twin Cities are famed as an industrial center, the display should attract much attention from out-of-town visitors.

Record Entries
Much enthusiasm is being manifested by members of the Menasha club over the tournament. The local unit is young and the tournament is an important phase of state Lions club activity. However, more teams have entered the tourney this year than in any previous year. The highest registration was at Appleton in 1936 when 55 entries were received. About 90 teams have sent applications to Claude Mayer, secretary of the Menasha club, for entry in the 1937 tournament.

Twelve Lion and booster teams will open the competition at 7 o'clock Saturday night including city officials' teams from Neenah and Menasha, two Lions club teams, two Menasha Rotary club teams, an Appleton booster team, two teams from the Neenah Kiwanis club and one from the Community association of Menasha.

Competition in the tournament will officially start at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Programs listing teams and the schedule will be available Friday afternoon. Visiting bowling teams will continue competition on weekends up to April 15.

Postmaster Spends Year Tracing Man to Return $10 Money Order

Menasha—The importance of filing change of address notices at the post office was brought out this morning by Joseph R. Coyle, postmaster, who illustrated the difficulties that are experienced by employees in the search for persons who have changed their addresses.

The postmaster yesterday completed a transaction that had been on file at the post office for over a year when he returned a $10 money order to a Detroit resident who had formerly lived in Menasha.

The money order had originally been sent from Menasha to a recipient in Papete, Tahiti. When the order arrived at its destination the person for whom it was intended had left the island and could not be located. The order was returned to the postmaster general at Washington and the local post office notified.

Upon investigation here, it was discovered that the sender had moved from Menasha and had left no forwarding address. Since no forwarding address had been left by either party, the matter was filed.

A few months ago Postmaster Coyle noticed a Russian newspaper in the post office which was addressed to the sender of the money order and immediately started the wheels of the investigation moving. He wrote to Moscow, Russia, and requested the address of the sender of the money order.

His message had to be translated in Russia and Mr. Coyle had to have the Russian message translated when it was received here. However, the address of the man was given and he was located in Detroit, Mich. The $10 order was returned to the owner yesterday.

"All of this trouble could be avoided," Mr. Coyle said, "if, when a person changed his address, he would notify the local postoffice. Addresses of postoffice patrons are confidential and cannot be revealed because of postal regulations."

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski, who was blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot to death in Anne's studio. Bigelow, the American from Paris, finds Anne and Karsanakov, the glamorous dancer, staring at the corpse. They hide it during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, move it to Vronski's rooms. Police arrest Thorne Dryden, a wealthy chap who hated Vronski. When Dryden's wife, Lorna, vanishes, Anne and Bigelow set out to find her. First they go to Madge Forrester's night club to check up.

HE dance ended, then, and Mirabelle came back, followed by Tommy Tuttle. Bigelow got up to give her the chair he had been occupying.

"Darling," cried Mirabelle. "Did you ever—? About Lorna, I mean. I called you up today, but you were out! I can't believe he did it!"

"But what I say is, if there isn't more in it than has come out yet, why did she run away?" put in Tommy Tuttle.

"I can't imagine why she did that," admitted Anne.

"Unless it was the shock," said Mirabelle. "People do lose their memories sometimes. She may be wandering somewhere—not knowing who she is. Isn't it awful?"

"I asked Jacques Bezaunquette today what he made of it," said Tuttle. "He was out with her, you know, the night of the murder."

"Do you think there's anything in that?" asked Chet. "They've been about a good deal together this season."

"Of course there's nothing in it," said Anne indignantly. "She's known Jacques all her life—just as I have."

"What did Jacques say?" asked Mirabelle.

"He doesn't know what to think. He says he's sure she didn't suspect what Thorne was up to that night, because she wasn't nervous or restless or anything. Just her usual self. I thought he might know where she's gone, but he doesn't. At least he says he doesn't. Thorne doesn't know, either. I saw him today."

"And you never told me!" cried Mirabelle. "You sat all through dinner and never said a word! Did you ever—?"

"What did Thorne say?" asked Anne.

"Nothing except what he told the police. I tried to find out what his fight with Vronski was about, but he wouldn't tell me. At least, he said it was just the usual drunken brawl."

"How did he look?" asked Mirabelle.

"Bored," said Tuttle.

"Bored?" repeated Mirabelle. "Did you ever—? I should think he'd be worried to death."

"He didn't seem so," said Tuttle. "But I suppose he'd try not to show it anyway."

"It must be a terrible feeling," said Chet, "to be shut up like that."

List Regulations For Security Act

Because employers have been confronted with various problems concerning the social security act, the security board has issued a statement concerning regulations of the act.

The board points out that it is an advantage to every employee to file an application or under the law it will be necessary for the employer to release necessary information concerning the employee.

Employees need have only one account number, regardless of the number of jobs held. A new number is not necessary when a change of employer is made, the board announced. The account number cards are the property of the employee and should not be mailed to the board or kept by the employer.

The nonpossession of an account number is no reason for employers not to hire a person if he or she immediately files an application.

Well, Let's Just Abolish State Government Then

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—It might clarify matters and soothe a great many apprehensive people if Mr. Roosevelt would hurry up and say that the states have outlived their usefulness, and declare for a straight national government, divided into a number of large sectional departments. Because, as matters stand, the national government is wiping out state rights and state responsibilities without abating the cost of running the states themselves, malingering, mutually parasitic loafers, are daily more inclined to pass their problems along to Washington.

Not many states have decent, let alone efficient governments, and since the nation began to act as Dutch uncle to the worst of them, even the best have come to the wise conclusion that the only way to break even is to grab all they can out of the national kitty. If this goes on indefinitely they are bound to destroy one another eventually, so it might be smart to toss out the idea pretty soon and let them snarl over it a couple of years preliminary to the third term.

I know that reference to the third term is an assumption, but I listened closely to all Mr. Roosevelt had to say in his victory dinner oration and didn't hear him say "no." It strikes me that a man with Mr. Big's gift for plain common language could have found in his vocabulary the words to say, "if nominated I will not accept, and if elected I will not serve," and the lack of any such declaration while he was on the subject leaves him still a candidate in my simple understanding.

These state governments are pretty bad as all of us have known for a long time. They are not really governments in the true sense, but political organizations which use the public money for the pay-off and load up with all the no-account uncles and ineptiate brothers-in-law of the party workers, and stick them away in the county and city governments which need a thorough de-lousing, too. Under a nationalist government the counties could be abolished almost altogether, saving perhaps some desert and mountain stretches where the county administration is the only local authority and doesn't cost very much anyway.

Sees Waste and Graft Under Present System

In the big cities and the more populous rural areas the counties exist almost exclusively as political prerequisites and the cost of preserving these sentimental relics of an earlier day is waste not only of pay but of graft beyond calculation.

It is even possible that under a real national government, if it were any good, the municipal authority would be subject to Washington supervision as to efficiency and cost, and that the price of being governed would decline to some figure near the victims' ability to pay. As it is now, the people pay, but they are never able to come up with the amount that is spent ostensibly on their behalf, and deficits are growing so fast that some day a generation of Americans will have to rub it all out and start over.

But State Governments Are no Good Anyway

If state governments were any good I would dislike the idea of wiping them out, but we get terrible political clowns and dummies for governors in most of them at any given time, and some states have stubbornly elected thieves to the office. There seems to be no desire to change. We get governors who are the political friends of predatory corporations, gamblers and gunmen.

We have seen them sneak murderers out of prison on secret paroles signed in the dark of the moon, and they had one in Illinois who had to turn back a fortune which he had stolen from the state, but walked out of court free when tried on a criminal charge for swiping it. And, anyway, most of them are not in office to govern, but to run the show for the politicians who put them in, which means that the state governments are simply holding companies for the boys. Maybe there are some exceptions, but I don't know of any.

Safety Stressed On PWA Projects

First Aid Kits Kept on All Jobs Being Carried Out in County

Only four accidents which required attention of a doctor and eleven other minor accidents occurred on PWA projects in Outagamie county last month, according to the monthly safety report. Every accident, no matter how slight, receives immediate attention and is reported.

Foremen on all projects act as first aid men and about 20 first aid kits are kept on the various jobs. A large number of the foremen attended a safety course conducted last year.

A rigid safety program is in effect at all times on all projects and frequent inspections are made by a district safety supervisor. Safety posters are placed in prominent places on each project and safety bulletins on seasonal work are regularly sent out by the safety department.

Foremen are instructed to use every safety measure while digging and trenching and safety equipment such as goggles and peg holders, are kept on each project.

Noted Metropolitan Opera Star finds Luckies easy on her precious throat--

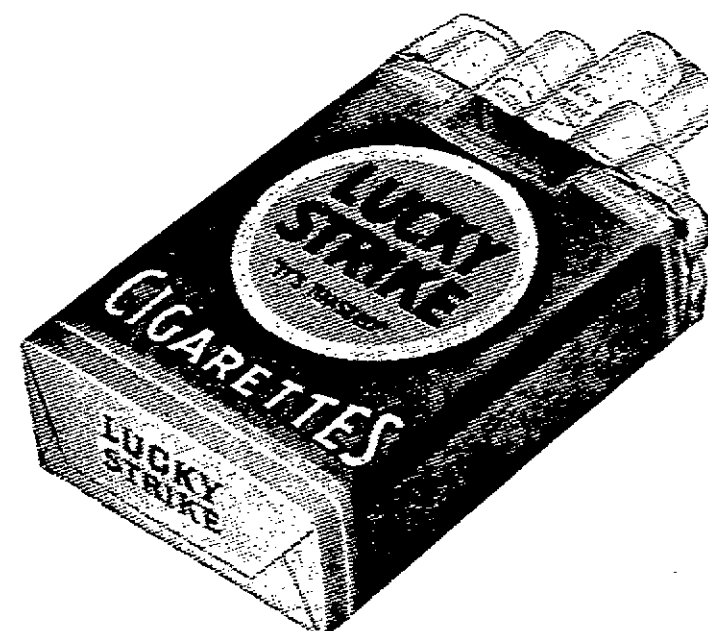

Marjorie Lawrence says:

"You must have a big voice to sing Wagner. My favorite role of 'Brunnhilde' in Wagner's 'Götterdämmerung' is a very exacting one. Yet—when I am back in my dressing room after I have finished singing, there is nothing I enjoy more than lighting up a Lucky. It is a light smoke—so gentle—so smooth—that it does not irritate my throat in the least. I agree with the others at the Metropolitan that a light smoke is a wise choice."

Marjorie Lawrence

BRILLIANT SOPRANO OF THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY

THE FINEST TOBACCOS—
"THE CREAM OF THE CROP"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Lawrence verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.
